Stories Through the Greek Blues Greek | Accordion | Blues
Sunday 22nd March, 17:30

Rebetiko, also known as the Greek blues, emerged in Greece around the end of the nineteenth and beginning of the twentieth century. Initially introduced by refugees from Smyrna (now Izmir), the original Oriental-influenced songs mostly spoke about the horrors of the refugee experience: displacement, loneliness, and the longing for loved ones. In the 1920s and 1930s, the genre became strongly associated with the rough nightlife, but from the 1950s and 1960s, rebetiko developed into the popular urban music of the Greek cities.

Meet Some of our Makers

Three inspiring stories of innovation from different corners of the Old World

Luisa and Maria Vieira de Sousa - Sisters Luisa and Maria are the 5th winemaking generation of the Vieira de Sousa family and are based in the heart of the Portuguese Douro. The sisters have restored the family company to full independence after nearly a century of selling wines to the Churchill's and Taylor's port brands. In the wake of the devastating phylloxera infestation that swept Europe in the late 19th century, killing great swathes of vineyards, Vieira de Sousa was forced to sell lands and the family brand name. Having completed an oenology degree, Luisa took the reins and recommenced bottling her own wine, initially using newly discovered reserve wines from the family cellar. The sisters reacquired the family name and then produced the first new Vintage Port in 2009. The Port wines that Luisa makes are defined by elegance and with lower residual sugar than many of the large-scale operators in the region. The still wines of Vieira de Sousa are made from the same vineyards and are as impressive as the Ports. The Alice range, is dedicated to Luisa and Maria's great aunt and pays homage to her career as a teacher through the workbook style label

May-Eliane de Lencquesaing is one of the great matriarchs of the wine world. Born into a Bordeaux wine family whose roots stretch back to the 18th century, May spent over thirty years at the helm of the legendary Château Pichon Longueville Comtesse de Lalande in Pauillac, elevating it to international acclaim and earning global respect as one of the most influential women in wine. At an age when many would consider retirement, May chose reinvention. In 2003, at 78 years old, she purchased a historic fruit farm in Ida's Valley, Stellenbosch, a site first settled by French Huguenots in the 1600s. She transformed the orchards into vineyards, planting Cabernet Sauvignon, Syrah, Merlot and Chardonnay with the same meticulous attention she had applied in Bordeaux. Glenelly became the culmination of her life's philosophy: French elegance shaped by South African terroir. Her wines are structured, refined and age-worthy, yet expressive of the Cape's sunshine and mountain breezes. The estate is also a reflection of May's love of culture and heritage, housing an important glass art collection and a museum that celebrates craftsmanship across generations. Still deeply involved in the estate into her nineties, May created Glenelly as both a legacy project and a bridge between Old World tradition and New World possibility. Today, her grandchildren continue her work, ensuring that Glenelly remains rooted in family values, long-term vision and a belief that great wine is built slowly, with patience and purpose.
